Science on Tap: The Great Lakes with Dan Egan

Join us for a special Science on Tap—Madison at Working Draft Beer Company featuring Dan Egan, author of The Death and Life of the Great Lakes!

Dan is a reporter for the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel who has long covered the Great Lakes. In his book, Dan chronicles the natural history of these freshwater oceans, lays out the threats to their ecological health, and offers ways forward to protect them. He particularly focuses on the threats posed by invasive species, such as zebra mussels and Asian carp, and their entry points — the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Chicago River canal. Those invasive species are now knocking on the doors of inland lakes like Mendota, or they're already here.

Dan will discuss his years of reporting on the health of the Great Lakes and take questions on what we can do to ensure that they thrive.

Wednesday, October 17

5:30pm—7:00pm
